No, this isn't another article about an impending AI apocalypse or a bubble bursting. I guess that you could say I'm an advocate of AI in software, or at least I accept that it's here to stay, whether we like it or not. I have witnessed firsthand how AI can radically transform the productivity of teams and products. But I have also seen the catastrophic damage that it can do, when relied upon blindly over time, both across my teams and in my own daily practice. Our industry is rapidly changing in front of
